

What parents say about EarthWalk

EarthWalk is fabulous. It is the only part of my daughter's educational experience about which I am 100% confident. It is a safe and peaceful place.

EarthWalk is an indispensable part of our child's joy, learning, and identity.

EarthWalk's core values - a curiosity and reverence for the Earth, a concern for friends and family, a fuller appreciation of what it means to be a member of a cooperative community - guide our son throughout each week.

I have really enjoyed watching my son learn natural science by learning life! He has gained self-confidence and developed his desire to help others.

Since EarthWalk, my daughter has become more capable and independent, "Grittier" in the best way!

He brings his EarthWalk experience into the world, sharing his knowledge and respect of nature with others, suggesting peaceful ways to re-solve conflicts, and moving his family and friends to work on environmental conservation. He has expressed interest in becoming an EarthWalk mentor when he is older and passing these messages on to others.

My daughter's joyfulness at the end of each day at EarthWalk, regardless of sunshine or downpour, is a testimony to what a brilliant experience this has been for her.

My son comes home from EarthWalk and takes his younger brother outside to share what he has learned. His school teacher tells me how much better he is doing since he began EarthWalk.

The EarthWalk community is a living example of what healthy relationships can be. Standards are high and the priority is given to developing and cultivating a social setting based on respect and caring for each other.
